

The Journal of Museum Anthropology, a yearly published by Polish Ethnological Society, is inviting contributions. The journal has been active since 2014 and is an open access on-line publication, providing a platform for exchange of ideas, studies and reflection within the broad area on the intersection of museum studies and cultural anthropology. In the 21 century, the “Age of Museums”, a critical debate on museums must seem a crucial issue. Our journal has been trying to be a part of this debate, both reflecting on the place of anthropology and ethnology in contemporary museums, as well as discussing current issues of museum practice, its challenges, accomplishments and possible futures.

We invite the museum workers and academics, the NGO activists and independent curators, and all those for whom the anthropological perspective on museum is important. We publish both museum ethnographies and theoretical studies, reports and reviews. We welcome contributions concerning any aspect of museum practices: exhibitions, collections, museum educational activities and publications. We are interested in museum policies and museum’s cultural role in contemporary society.

Until the end of May 2020 we invite the contributions for the issue number 8 (2020). Information for the authors can be found at:
